

He Could Have

(verse 1)

There was a baby born in a stable with an enormous price on his head.
Though he was just a child, a king wanted to see him dead.
For the king knew that he would rule the world.
The prophecies, they told it all. And this child grew to perfection.
With his life, he taught the world.

(chorus)

He could have come into the world in riches.
Could have arrived sitting on a throne.
Could have demanded all to love him. He chose to save the world.
(last) He chose to save the world.

(verse 2)

His neighbors, he did not come to envy. Though he had plenty of reasons to.
He did not point a finger, even though his own life was pure.
He refrained from the sweet taste of revenge.
His enemies, he held up in prayer. Like the parents teach their children.
With his life, he taught the world.

(Bridge)

He ruled the weather and walked on water.
Raised the dead and healed the sick.
Though his power uncontrollable, his life humble and sinless.
